Commonwealth Commercial Partners Launches Full-Service Facility Management Division

In addition to facility maintenance, Commonwealth Facility Solutions will provide financial, sustainability, space optimization, vacant property preservation and pre-construction consultative services.

Richmond, Va. – March 7, 2018 – As part of its continued growth strategy, Commonwealth Commercial Partners (CCP) is launching Commonwealth Facility Solutions (CFS), a new division providing facility management consultation and services to CCP's existing client base, as well as organizations with complex, multi-facility needs. The new entity will be spearheaded by Jim Reilly, who brings more than 10 years of facility management expertise. Jim is a past president of the state Building Owners and Managers Association (BOMA) and holds LEED's accreditation.

"We're going beyond the traditional facility management offering with a team representing multiple disciplines" says Reilly. "That broad skill set enables us to not only provide customized solutions for each client, but also to partner on a broader level, serving as a resource to various operating groups at all stages of facility planning and operations."

In addition to its management offerings, CFS' core services will include facility related financial planning – for maintenance and other third-party vendors; occupancy services to improve the on-site experience; space management and facility planning solutions; as well as sustainability measures.

"The addition of Commonwealth Facility Solutions enhances our comprehensive service set one step further for our commercial partners," said Mark Claud, CEO of Commonwealth Commercial Partners. "Whether you're at the beginning of your search for a facility, mid-stream with a location that needs a fresh perspective or looking for advice on a property that's no longer needed, our diverse set of offerings enables clients to develop and implement thoughtful and more profitable solutions."
